"UP IN A BALLOON."

Perilous Adventures of an Æronaut-A Few Flights with Him.

The expressions "going up the spout," "up the creek," "and up for ninety days" are familiar to all of our renders, but very few of them have seen any one literally "go up." therefore a sketch of a man who has "gone up" one hundred and forty-three times, and proposes to "go up" againthis time for the benefit of our citizens-must prove interesting. We will follow (on paper) Professor King, in some of his many adventures

"___Among the little stars, Sailing round the moon."

THE FIRST ASCENSION. Mr. Samuel A. King, who will make an ascension from the Citadel Green this week, is a native of Philadelphia, and was born in 1828. He is an gronaut of extensive practical experience, havmade no less than one hundred and forty-three ascensions. Having witnessed some of the exploits of Wise and other eronauts in his native city, he resolved upon attempting something of the kind himself, and accordingly constructed a balloon, in which he ascended at Philadelphia on the 25th of September, 1851. He did not have a full supply of gas, but not wishing to disappoint the people, he made the ascent with the balloon a little more than half filled. As soon as the rope was cut, the balloon dashed against the enclosure, then came in contact with the wire bridge, and next struck the telegraph wire, the car all the while swaying to and fro in the wind. Finally Massachusetts, "the ladies assembled at the the balloon descended into the Schuylkill River, and after bouncing up and dewn in the water, and half drowning the eronaut, at length rose to the western bank, where the voyager concluded to and did anchor.

UPS AND DOWNS. In 1855 Mr. King ascended from Wilkesbarre, Pennsylvania, and sailed over mountain and forest for about an hour in search of a landing place. Suddenly the basket brushed against a high hemlock, in the limbs of which the grapnel was caught. The balloon was driven with great force against the scraggy limbs of another tree, and in less time than it takes to tell it, was torn to pieces. The sudden escape of gas caused the wreck to fall to the ground, carrying the eronaut with it. He fell forty feet, and for a few moments laid insensible, but fortunately received no serious injuries. On another occasion, in August, 1857, Mr. King ascended from New Haven, Conn. with two other gentlemen. They were carried out over Long Island Sound, and, after sailing a dozen miles or more, concluded that they had beter effect a landing on one of the small islands thereabout, or else be carried out to sea. As it was not certain that the balloon would strike directly on the island-a very small one-Mr. King deter mined to make the balloon alight in the water first, and drag the car on it to the island. This was accordingly done. The balloon struck where the water was deep, and the party were, for a all, the postmaster at Hamburg, by means of a moment, submerged, but were snatched out as the balloon recovered itself, and then dragged, knee-deep in the water, to the island, which was not much larger than the balloon. A number of yachts, which had followed the balloon, came to the assistance of the party, who were then carried to the mainland.

On a trip with four other persons from Boston Common, in 1861, the balloon was carried down the harbor by a strong west wind. As there was only a small strip of sand beach between the party and the sea, Professor King determined to land upon the beach. Knowing that the anchor would drag through the sand, he allowed the car dents and teachers of the Sunday Schools of to strike the water before reaching the bank; the anchor was flung overboard and gas permitted to escape in such quantities that the balloon in a few moments would have come to a stand-still. As the shore was reached, one of the party jumped out. This lightened the car to such an extent that it drifted rapidly across the beach to the water on the other side. The only chance to escape drowning was for all to leave the balloon at once, and as the water was reached, all, at the command of Professor King to jump for their lives, jumped and escaped with a slight wetting. The balloon was so crippled before it was abandoned that it fell into the water few miles from the shore, and was recovered. In 1862 another ascension was made from Boston Common, and as the balloon floated out seaward Professor King accepted an invitation from the captain of a tug "to come down and be picked up." The balloon lit in the water; the tug came , threw a line to the erronaut, and commenced towing the balloc. The tow-rope broke, and away went the balloon. The tug caught up with it again, and another towing scene soon commenced: but in a short time the condition of affairs was reversed. A strong wind came up; the balloon ascended, and commenced towing the tug against its will to a dangerous reef of rocks. Not daring to reverse the engine against the balloon, the captain begged the ærial voyagers to come aboard of his tug, which they agreed to do, coming hand over hand down the tow-rope which was thirty feet long. One of the men lost his hold and fell overboard, but was rescued. As the last man stepped aboard of the tug, the rope parted, and away went the balloon. It was found the next day, split from top to bottom by a rail fence, near the entrance to Boston harbor.

CRINOLINE IN THE AIR. In Melrose, Mass., Professor King permitted ladies to ascend a short distance. Ropes were attached to the balloon and held by men on the ground When up with five ladies the ropes slipped through the men's hands, and as they attempted to check the balloon, they were taken off their feet. One by one they let go, and the balloon was adrift. Two of the ladles were terribly frightened, two clapped their hands in eestacy, and one did not know whether to laugh or cry. After a sail of four miles the balloonists were safely landed in a young forest.

All of our readers will remember the account of Professor's King's recent trip from Augusta to Gourdin's Station, on the Northeastern Railroad, how he was cheered, shot at, and at last landed in a big tree, the branches of which tore his balloon, and gave him a severe fall. Many adventures of a similar character have happened to Mr. King. Not a single accident has yet occurred in any of the numerous ascensions of Mr. King, by which any one has been injured, though many of the ascensions were made under very adverse circumstances.

STRANGE DISAPPEARANCE OF TWO COLORED BOYS-ONE FOUND DEAD .- On Wednesday last two colored boys, named respectively Sam. Robinson and - Terry, took a boat to go "crabbing." From the time they left the city until yesterday morning nothing was heard of them. Then the father of Nell went out in search of the boys. After a long exploration of the marshes and inlets in this vicinity, he found the boat in a marsh near Mount Pleasant, and in it the dead body of his son. The body was covered with a piece of cloth. Upon it were no marks of violence. There were no traces of Terry. The body was brought to Charleston and carried to the father's house, on Inspection, near Morris street, where an inquest will be held. The supposition is that Nell died from hunger and cold, was covered up by his companion, who then attempted to swim to the land and was drowned in the attempt, or was washed overboard and drowned. LATER .- Coroner Whiting held an inquest at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The verdict of the jury was that the deceased had come to his death from exposure on Wednesday night.

RAILROAD NEWS .- We learn that on Saterday, Captain Alfred Tyler, the son of General Daniel Trier, was elected vice-president of the South Carolina Railroad Company. "Marta at the Academy." To-might the McCulloch-Brignoll opera troupe make their debut at the Academy of Music in Flotow's opera of "Marta." The company, in its principal parts, is exceedingly strong, for Miss McCulloch and Signor Brignoll are in themselves a host, and we understand that these experienced leaders will be well supported in the most important particulars.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Marta," the most popular of Flotow's operas, as made the reputation of more than one prima donna; and its light, graceful music is always a favorite with the public. The famous tenor romanza, the drinking song (sung so well by Herrmanns last week,) and the "Last Rose of Summer" in Italian garb, are familiar in every household; and the charming "spinning wheel" quartette and the lively choruses, with their sparkling accompaniments, are never heard but with pleasure and satisfaction.

The programme to-night promises well, and the McCulloch-Brignoli troupe may count upon a warm reception. The Hibernicon, a pictorial and musical entertainment, will be presented at the Hibernian Hall to-night. Jerry Cohan, the celebrated Irish comedian and vocalist, annearing as Barney, the Guide, giving comic sketches of Irish character and eccentricities Marie Dalton McEvoy, the charming Irish prima donna, appearing as Nora, and Miss Kate Halpine, the pleasing character vocalist, appearing as Mrs. O'Callahan and the young widow, will add much to the pleasure of the evening by their songs and accurate renditions of the characters which they represent.

Wyman's matinee Saturday afternoon, and the exhibition that night, were well attended. These concluded his exhibitions here.

BASE BALL MATCH .- A match game was played on Saturday by the Vigilant and Atlanta, Junior, Base Ball Clubs. At the close the score stood: Vigilant 32, Atlanta 13. Flies caught-Vigilant 7, Atlanta 1.

A GRAND BALL will be given at the Academy of Music to-morrow night, under the auspices o the German Ladies Society, for the benefit of the new German Church. The managers are: Senior managers: J. C. H. Claussen, N. Fehrenbach, F. J. Lilienthal, Jacob Reils, D. Werner, J. P. Merk hardt. Junior managers: John Klatte, Ernest W: Itjen, Louis Muller, W. Stender, M. J. H. Ostendorff, Julius S. Bulken. The object of the ball is most worthy, and it should, and doubtless will, be largely attended.

SHARING AND BURNING.—IT IS ot necessary to journey from the tropics to Alaska in order to experience the extremes of heat and cold. Thousands undergo all the inconveniences of this thermometrical change every day. er every other day, as the case may be, without the trouble of moving over the threshold. A word with these involuntary shakers. What are they doing to expedite their return to a medium temperature?-to break the chills and banish the fever? Are they dosing themselves with quinine, thereby imperiling the soundness of their bones and impairing the vigor of their brains and nervous system ! Some of them are, no doubt, but not the majority of them, it is believed. The value of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS as a harmless and certain specific for fever and ague, is understood and appreciated in all parts of the country where intermittents prevail. The residents of such localities begin to take it early in the spring as a protection against the miasma by which they are surrounded; not all of them, perhaps, for a blind adherence to error is the specialty of some people, but the greater number.

If there is any fixed fact in therapentics, it is this, that the Bitters are a far better safeguard against all the varieties of periodic maladies proluced by unwholesome exhalations than any drug or compound in the materia medica of the rofession. This assertion is made with all due respect to the faculty, but being an important truth, and one that nearly concerns the health of large settlements in various parts of the country, and indeed of the public at large, it is made fear lessly. Founded on ample and unimpeachable testimeny, it defies disapproval.

To break up chills and fevers, as well as to pre ent them, there is nothing so reliable as this wholesome vegetable restorative. mch21 6

A GRAND EPOCH IN SCIENCE. From the time when, in 1834, Dr. RUGGE discovered "Carbolic Acid" and its extraordinary medical effects, nothing in the history of Medicine has equalled it. Largely used by the French physicians in treatment of consumptive and scrofulous diseases, it was introduced by the Court Physician of Berlin, MAX ERNST HENRY, into Prus sia, and from thence to the United States.
